A President's Mother

WHAT WOULD you be thinking about if tomorrow you were to be made the President of the United States? Here is the story of one of our great Presidents, and what he thought about when he was inaugurated.

He lived in Cleveland, Ohio. A few days before the great ceremony, he wrote to his old mother: "I want you to go to Washington with me."

His mother was very much surprised, and after thinking it all over, she wrote to her son, of whom she was very proud: "I cannot go to Washington. I would be quite out of place there among the great people whom you will meet. I will stay at home and pray for you."

The man who was soon to be President sent this answer: "I will not go without you." And so they traveled together to the capital city.

They stayed at the same hotel, and when the time came for the ceremony, they went together, his mother leaning on his arm. They entered the carriage and drove to the Capitol, where a great audience of over one hundred thousand people were waiting.

It was a gala occasion—the high platform and all the celebrated men from all over the country, governors, judges, and ministers—and all the great sea of white faces turned to the one central place where he was. The people noticed that instead of taking the chair that was provided for him, he gave it to his mother. Then he delivered his inaugural address. After he had taken the oath to be true to his high office, and before he sat down, he put his arms around his mother, and kissed her.

We wonder if you know who this President was? He was one of our martyred Presidents. His name was James A. Garfield. The way he took care of his mother was one of the most beautiful things he ever did, and all that great congregation of people, after the din was over, and they had gone to their homes, thought so.

Our mothers do for us far more than we can ever repay. Let us hope that no one will ever get too big, or too old, or too far away to remember his mother, and to make her happy in his own happiness. It would be worth while to live in order to do just that.

Congress May Save Us Trouble Of Kicking 'Slots' to Pieces

Chicago, May 13—(AP)—Nobody knows how many broke and bitter men have tried to kick slot machines to pieces.

About all they have to show for their efforts is scuffed shoes. But Uncle Sam may soon take a whack at the things with a new law. He may put quite a dent in the business.

The senate has approved, and the house is considering, a bill to stop the shipment of slot machines into states where they are illegal.

A lot of people in Chicago, capital of the slot machine industry, are wondering what will happen if the legislation is adopted.

The coin-fed contraption has had a long and lush life. Its origin is clouded by the mists of time. But old heads in the trade believe the great-granddaddy of them all was invented in about 1885 by Charles Fey in California.

Production began in Chicago at about the turn of the century and now there are at least eight firms that make the devices here.

The machines usually have three vertical wheels. On them are pictures of such things as cherries, oranges, plums, bells and bars. You put in a coin and pull a lever.

See Pictures—Lemons
The wheels spin. When they stop you can see three pictures in small glass windows. When certain combinations of pictures show up, you win. When they don't, you don't. The gadgets will take nickels, dimes, quarters, half dollars and silver dollars.

The apparatus often is called "the one-armed bandit." You find the reason for that in the literature on the subject in reference libraries. The findings in the reports vary, but here are some of them:

Manufacturers claim the machines, as built in their plants, are

'Near East' Three's Topic

London, May 13—(AP)—The west's big three foreign ministers gave urgent consideration today to strengthening the middle and far east economically and militarily against Soviet aggression.

In their final day of conferences before the meeting of Atlantic pact foreign ministers, the diplomats—Dean Acheson of the United States, Ernest Bevin of Great Britain and Robert Schuman of France—dropped the problems of the Germans and Europe temporarily to take up eastern affairs.

It was considered possible that the United States might aid anti-Communist forces in Burma as well as Indochina.

It was unlikely anything would be done on the China question since Great Britain has recognized the Communist regime and France and the United States has not.

Widow of Strauss Dies in Germany

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, May 13—(AP)—Frau Pauline Strauss, widow of the late German composer Richard Strauss died at her home here today. Her husband died last September. German officials said Frau Strauss, 87, died of old age.

State Police Raid Two Gambling Clubs

Direct Order From Governor Starts Drive

Owners Seized, 800 Names Taken

Springfield, Ill., May 13—(AP)—State police, acting on direct order of Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, raided two downtown clubs yesterday. They seized the owners and 58 employees of the Hyde Park club in Venice, Ill., and the 200 club in Madison.

An estimated 800 customers were in both clubs and they had to give police their names and addresses before being released.

'Blackjack' in Swing
A state official, who declined use of his name, said horsebook and "blackjack" operations were found in full swing at both clubs.

This is the first time since the governor took office that state police have been ordered to participate in such a raid.

The governor in the past has said he prefers that gambling problems be handled locally, by authorities within the county or city.

"I have today, in association with Attorney General (Ivan E.) Elliott, used the state police against commercialized gambling in Madison county.

"For more than a year, Attorney General Elliott and I have attempted to stop commercialized gambling by several methods. We have found our direct talks with local officials of offending counties the most effective method.

State Will Intervene
"I have stated repeatedly that the state would intervene if necessary gambling persists in spite of all our efforts. Hence, today's raids. The evidence is being turned over to the state's attorney."

The governor warned that state police "will be used again if need be to stop persistent, defiant violation."

Seized in the raids were Gregory E. "Red" Moore, a part owner of the Hyde Park club, and Harry West, owner of the 200 club.

The raids were led by Tom Brennan, administrative assistant to Thomas O'Donnell, the state public safety director.

More than 40 state highway patrolmen—some in uniform and others in plain clothes—took part in the raids. They were rookie officers drawn from all parts of the state and not from any one troop.

Some of the raiders carried new axes, presumably to break up gambling equipment.

Assistant Attorney General Harold Talley said those seized were held for investigation. He said filing of charges or pleas for admission to bail would be up to Austin Lewis, Madison county state's attorney.

Talley said more than $20,000 was seized in the raids and that the money had been placed under guard at the Alton police station.

Daily Price Index Hits High for Year
Washington, May 13—(AP)—The government's daily index of prices hit a high for the year in the week ending May 9.

The Bureau of Labor statistics said the index of 28 commodities climbed 2.39 per cent during the week to 239 per cent of the August, 1913 level.

The agency said there has been a steady rise in prices over a fairly long period, adding that it is studying the picture to determine what significance the trend may have.

Red River Resumes Slow, Steady Rise

Winnipeg, Man., May 13—(AP)—The still-flooding Red River resumed its slow rise here early today after a six-hour leveling off.

A U. S. expert said the river's highest water was at least 65 miles away from the city.

The river system already has poured its waters over one-eighth of the Greater Winnipeg area and flooded 540 square miles of Southern Manitoba.

Hollywood Couple Out Honeymooning

Los Angeles, May 13—(AP)—Suave Paul Douglas, 43-year-old movie actor, and Actress Jan Sterling, 27, are honeymooning today.

MORE THAN 50 JUNIOR AND SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS of this area interested in nursing attended a tea yesterday afternoon, Hospital Day, at the KSB Hospital School of Nursing home. Students from Polo, West Brooklyn, Dixon, Amboy, Harmon, Franklin Grove, Ashton, Sheffield, Sterling and Rock Falls attended the affair sponsored by the wives of the members of the Whiteside and Lee county medical society. When the above shot was taken a group of the potential nurses had paused for a minute from their tour of the hospital and school of nursing to inspect literature on nursing. In the above picture from left to right: Lois Orgiesen, Amboy; Jackie Praetz, Dixon; Roberta Mercer, senior nurse at the school; Marcia Grant, Polo; Bertie Lou Pfoutz, Franklin Grove and Mrs. Charles Lesage, president of the medical auxiliary.

'Invite' Lewis To Testify on Labor Unions

Washington, May 13—(AP)—Stripped of his subpoena powers, Rep. Jacobs (D-Ind.) today "invited" John L. Lewis to testify about union activities next Tuesday before a house labor subcommittee.

But there was a strong possibility that by Tuesday night Jacobs will have no subcommittee, leaving Lewis with no place to testify even if he wants to.

Jacobs announced the "invitation" procedure in letters to colleagues on the labor committee—including Chairman Lesinski (D-Mich.)—and to Lewis himself.

The Indiana congressman heads a subcommittee studying "union democracy." He previously had announced his intention to subpoena Lewis, along with Lloyd Sidener, former head of a United Mine Workers local at Canton, Ill., and Bernard Beasley, an international UMW officer.

Sidener has accused Lewis of sending "secret signals" to UMW members during the recent coal strike, telling them to ignore the public back-to-work directive he issued at the order of a federal court.

Lesinski upset Jacobs' plan to subpoena the three witnesses by revoking the subpoena powers of subcommittee chairman.

Iowa Prisoner Plants Mike, Hears Parole Board Sessions

Cedar Rapids, Ia., May 13—(AP)—An Iowa prisoner planted a microphone in the warden's conference room and made wire recordings of closed sessions of the state board of parole.

He also built a powerful radio transmitter within the walls of the state men's reformatory at Anamosa, Ia. Before he was able to broadcast his whole setup was discovered.

Before his scheme was squelched, the prisoner managed to smuggle some spools of his wire recordings out of the institution.

This story was disclosed last night by Jim Bormann, news director of radio station WMT, Cedar Rapids, in a copyrighted broadcast.

Bormann said he came into possession of the recordings by keeping an appointment at the Chicago airport with an intermediary of the prisoner. Bormann said he identified himself "by a prearranged set of words" to get the spools.

The prisoner who indulged in the electric eavesdropping, Bormann said, was Pete Hellyer, 47, of Waterloo, Ia. He said Hellyer was sentenced 10 years ago for a sex crime.

Bormann related that Hellyer had help from other prisoners in his activities and that one of them planted the microphone which picked up the parole board's interviews with prisoners seeking clemency.

Hellyer was in charge of the reformatory's radio shop. This shop handled the public address system which fed standard broadcasts to all parts of the prison.

A recent issue of the reformatory's publication, "The Hawk-eye," said that for 10 years Hellyer "has studied radio construction and radio physics."

Democrats Open Three-Day Show

Chicago, May 13—(AP)—Democrats from across the nation were in Chicago today for a three-day party conference and Jefferson Jubilee celebration.

The biggest political show since the national party conventions two years ago will end Monday night with a Chicago Stadium speech by President Truman.

William M. Boyle, Jr., chairman of the Democratic national committee, told the party leaders today to give voters first hand reports or the Truman administration's stewardship. He said such strategy can win for the Democrats in the fall campaign.

He declared the Republicans are deliberately distorting the facts.

The event marks the 150th anniversary of Jefferson's election as president.

Cheese Plant Here to Cut Operations

The Lakeshire-Marty cheese division of the Borden company went into the mothball stage today insofar as the plant located west of Dixon was concerned.

Curtalement of some of the operations becomes effective May 31, Ralph C. Schroeder, Dixon manager, announced. The processing operations will be discontinued, Schroeder said. However, the plant will continue to handle natural cheese as it has in the past and will continue its program of purchasing cheese from independent producers. The Dixon plant will also continue as a shipping and distributing center for both natural and processed cheese.

The processing operations, Schroeder said, will be transferred to the company's Plymouth, Wis., plant for the present, where more diversified facilities are available.

Manager Schroeder stated that the company is sorry to halt its processing here, even temporarily, and he hoped conditions would change so operations can be resumed. He said the processing end of the operation is in making and packaging five-pound and two-pound loaf cheese.

About 72 people are employed at the local plant. A part of these people will be retained to carry on the restricted program. The remainder will be offered employment in other Borden plants wherever possible.

Other operations of the company in Dixon will not be effected, he added. The force will be drastically reduced, despite the fact that the Dixon plant has been turning out an average of 12,000-20,000 pounds of processed cheese annually.

Start Student Nurse Scholarship Fund at KSB Nursing School

A scholarship fund for student nurses has been established at the Katherine Shaw Betha School of Nursing, Dixon Public Hospital, by the medical staff and other interested organizations. This fund is available to any qualified young woman who needs financial aid to enter nursing training.

Applications are now being accepted for the September class of nursing. Further information will be given any young woman interested in the program. She should contact the School of Nursing office at the Dixon Public Hospital.

There are 30 nurses enrolled in the student nursing program at the present time.

'My Own Idea,' Says Chavez in Budenz Attack

Denies Democrats Prompted Speech

Washington, May 13—(AP)—Senator Chavez (D-NM) declared today that his bitter attack on ex-Communist Louis Budenz was strictly his own idea, with no prompting from the Truman administration.

Replying to a contention by Senator McCarthy (R-Wis) that the New Mexico Democrat was duped by administration spokesmen into "this outrageous attempt to smear Budenz," Chavez told reporters:

"Joe McCarthy need not feel sorry for me. I'll be here in the senate a lot longer than he will be. Nobody dupes me. I do things on my own volition and I take the responsibility."

Chavez lit into Budenz in a senate speech yesterday. He said Budenz, one time managing editor of the Communist Daily Worker, has been using the cross of the Roman Catholic church "as a club" in the senate inquiry into McCarthy's charges of communism in the government.

Chavez, a Catholic himself, also discussed in detail what he called Budenz' "sordid past."

Budenz, who renounced communism in 1945 and rejoined the Catholic church, made no immediate reply.

McCarthy was not in the senate when Chavez spoke, but he got out a statement later predicting belief that Chavez was put up to his attack on Budenz by Senator Tydings (D-Md), chairman of the inquiry committee, and Senator Lucas (D-Ill), the majority leader.

"The personal attack on Mr. Budenz, I am sure will not deter him from completing his testimony. He undoubtedly expected to be smeared and vilified when he dedicated the balance of his life to the exposure of communists in places of danger to this nation," he said.

Check Decline in Farm Prices

Washington, May 13—(AP)—Fairly stable farm product prices and improvement in general business conditions have checked last year's decline in farm real estate prices, the Agriculture Department reported today.

Values for the country as a whole in March averaged slightly above those of last November, although they still were about 3 per cent below values of a year ago.

A department survey showed that there is a strong demand for good farms for full-time farming and smaller ones for part-time farming.

The number of farms listed for sale, however, was smaller than in 1949.

The changes in land values by states since last November include:

Increases: Indiana two per cent; Illinois three; Michigan one; Iowa two; Missouri two.

No change: Wisconsin.

Revise Schedules for Greyhound Bus

A revision of Greyhound bus schedules will be effective May 16. It will affect the arrival and departure times for service into and out of Dixon. The changes are made for the summer travel period.

Mr. Kauffman, of the local Greyhound agency, suggests that travelers call the depot for the latest information about any trip that is being planned.

Vacation literature and scheduled information is obtainable by calling or visiting the depot.

Implement Dealers in Amboy Exhibit

Several agricultural implement representatives from northern Illinois assembled at Bert Hinrich's agency in Amboy yesterday afternoon to witness the unloading and assembling of a Tryco Hi-boy.

The equipment was late in arriving and it was not until late in the afternoon that it was assembled and ready for a demonstration.

Walkout Cuts Deeper Into U. S. Economy

Deadlock Enters Its Fourth Day

Chicago, May 13—(AP)—Hopes of an early settlement of the crippling railroad strike appeared dimmer today as the four-day walkout by locomotive firemen cut deeper into the nation's economy.

There had been earlier reports that the rail union had offered new proposals designed to bring peace with the four struck carriers.

But Chairman Francis O'Neill, Jr. of the National (railway) Mediation board apparently squelched the report. After a meeting last night with representatives of the four big railroads involved in the strike, he said:

"They're just as deadlocked now as they were at the start of the strike 'Wednesday morning'."

O'Neill said there had been no new offer by David B. Robertson, president of the striking Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

"I just hope the strike doesn't get to be a slugging match," O'Neill added.

As peace efforts apparently hit a snag, the number of jobless mounted to nearly 200,000. At the same time, a railroad spokesman in Los Angeles said that firemen are to strike against a fifth railroad—the Union Pacific's Los Angeles to Salt Lake City run.

W. T. Price, Union Pacific traffic manager in Los Angeles, said the union will pull its firemen off trains operating on the Los Angeles line.

Pan American Strikebound!

New York, May 13—(AP)—Seven hundred flight service workers, supported by 3,000 maintenance employees who refused to cross picket lines, struck today against the huge Pan American World Airways.

A representative of the airline said that except for delays the company's flight schedules were being maintained throughout the world-wide system.

The strikers, members of the CIO Transport Workers union, walked off their jobs early today after last mediation negotiations collapsed. Main issue in the dispute is the union's demand for higher pay.

Operating 140 planes, the company employs 14,000. No new meetings of negotiators were scheduled.

Groucho Awarded Divorce on Mental Cruelty Grounds

Los Angeles, May 13—(AP)—Groucho Marx doesn't like housework and his young wife, Kay, didn't like his friends, the comedian testified yesterday in obtaining a divorce on grounds of mental cruelty.

The 59-year-old radio and movie wisecracker testified he had to manage the household, keep the servants in line, order the meals and perform other duties after a hard day on the radio.

The comic and his wife, 29, the former Kay Gorcey, were wed in 1945, and have a three-year-old daughter, Melinda, whose custody Mrs. Marx will have 10 months of the year. Groucho will pay Mrs. Marx $134,215 over a period of 10½ years.

Blast Rips Plant, Two Workers Hurt

Bridgeville, Pa., May 13—(AP)—Two explosions that could be heard a half mile away ripped the American Cyanamid company plant in this small Pennsylvania town 10 miles south of Pittsburgh last night.

Flames lighted the sky for a few seconds, but the fire was controlled quickly. Two workers were injured slightly.

County Jail Jammed, 65 on Waiting List

Sydney, N. S., May 13—(AP)—If you get yourself sentenced to county jail here, you'll have to wait your turn to be admitted. The jail was built to house 45 inmates. At present it accommodates 85, and there are 65 others on a waiting list.

Explains How Communists Can Take Control of Labor Union

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, May 13—(AP)—You ask yourself: How can Communists control a labor union, particularly when a majority of the members are not Communists and may despise Communism?

This question was revived this week when the supreme court upheld that part of the Taft-Hartley law which says that unions can't get the law's protection unless their officers swear they are not Communists. That provision aims to discourage Communist control of unions.

But now do Communists get control of unions?

Answer Easy
The answer is easy. When it happens, it's because the Communists know what they're doing and work together while the non-Communists are lazy, or not alert, or weaken themselves by internal fights.

Anyone who has been active in unionism will tell you this:

1. People join a union because they think it will help them, or because they believe in the principle of unionism and want to support it, or because they think they have been mistreated by the boss, or for other reasons.

2. Except for paying their dues, most of those who join then take no active part in union affairs. This is the old story of "oh, let George do it."
- Why? They're lazy; or they lack strong convictions about unionism and just mope along; or, they fail to understand that if they don't take an active part in any organization they join, they may find themselves being led down a road they never intended to follow.

3. Nevertheless, there are always a comparatively small number of union members who have a sense of responsibility. Which means going to the meetings, taking part in discussions, voting on union decisions, and being willing to hold union office.

Small Minority
Everywhere at union meetings the number of those present almost always will be only a small minority of the total membership. It's this small group which in the end makes the decisions and elects the officers for the total membership, including the lazy stay-aways.

Even where there are no Communists this set up makes for undemocratic unionism since it con-

Bird Lover Says Martins Think Of the Others

For 20 years the main hobby of a Princeton citizen has been the study and care of birds, winter and summer. Part of the equipment is a large martin house approximately 26 by 36 inches when was on a heavy pole 16 feet from the ground. This has been here for about 12 years.

This year about 20 martins nested in the box and twice as many sparrows. In the heavy gale Friday this pole was broken, and the house and nests plunged to the ground. It was picked up by the attendants and fixed as best could be done temporarily to house the birds for the night. The attendants worked until after midnight fixing the house so the birds could return at once if they desired. They occupied the house that night and spent the day flying about hunting for their permanent home. By night it was ready.

About 6 p. m. the Paul Revere of the martins, as in 1775, flew from Concord to Lexington and announced to the whole martin world in the vicinity, the disaster that had occurred to their associates and they flew around continuously paying their respects and extending their sympathy until long after dark. There were considerably over 200 martins assembled at the place of the accident to assist the home families in their distress, and they did all they could to show their sympathy.

The house was put on a table to protect the nests and eggs as much as possible from attack from varmints and the home martins after flying about until after dark occupied the house that night. The next morning the permanent home was restored and the home martins immediately returned to their homes.

Of the many who have loved and watched the martins over the years none has heard of an incident such as this and they are now engrossed in speculation of how much of the human element of sympathy these birds possess.

Distant Star

BY HERMINA BLACK

XXXIII

WHEN Louie set down the tray beside her bed, Clemency awoke and sat up with a start. "Baba?"

"Nurse says she is still sleeping. She has had a wonderful night. Praise be to Allah, she will get well," said Louie joyously. "The doctors both have gone."

"What time is it?" Clemency glanced at her clock. "Louie! I should have been called before this!"

"No, Sir. The Sids Amberley's orders. And you are to eat your breakfast in bed."

Clemency sank back on her pillows, still drowsy from the effects of the sleeping tablet she had been given last night.

The sunlight flooded the room like a benediction—Baba was going to get well. And then she remembered why this heavy ache lay at her heart, why it would be worse before it ever eased.

Nothing of what had happened during this last 48 hours had changed her own problem. She still had to give Pers back his ring, and tell him she was going away. It was useless to think things could ever be the same between them again—loving him so desperately only made them worse. She might forgive what he had done to her—but nothing could undo what he had done to Jon. What Syrie had made him do!

She clenched her hands until the nails dug into the palms. Last night when she came to bed she had wept, but the tears were out of her utter weariness. And her relief over Baba. Her own tragedy was too deep for tears.

Lunchtime was over when at last she emerged from her room to go in search of Pers, but he did not seem to be anywhere about, and it was Syrie she found.

"This morning only the shadows around Syrie's eyes which her make-up did not quite succeed in hiding, betrayed anything of what she had gone through. When ask you what you were waiting to say to Pers—"

Clemency felt herself freeze up. "If you don't mind, I would rather not discuss it."

"There is no need to," said Syrie. "Here is Pers, and—I think—I know he will have something to say to you." And then as Clemency moved swiftly towards the second exit from the room she exclaimed sharply: "Pers! Don't let Clemency go."

HE reached out, and taking Clemency's arm, drew her back. And so she stood, Syrie facing her, Pers on the other side, her heart beating furiously, out determined to save herself the indignity of a further attempt to escape.

"Pers," Syrie told him, "you have something to tell Clemency."

"He has nothing to tell me that I don't already know," said Clemency.

"Oh yes, he has—a lot," Syrie assured her, and with her eyes on Pers: "Has Jon spoken to you?"

"Yes."

"Then tell Clemency the truth. You shouldn't have trusted me at all," Syrie shrugged. "I'm a born liar when it suits. Go on, Pers. Tell her what I did to you and all the rest of it. She'll believe you now. Jon will have told you that I let him think what he said to her was true."

She turned her glance to Clemency's white, stricken face. "There's one truth I can tell. I loved Pers—I wouldn't have stopped at anything to make what I wanted you to believe come true. But he loathes me! I wanted to punish him for making me stay here. Months ago I made Jon believe what you believed. I suppose I wanted to punish Jon too."

"But some odd happened to me when Baba fell ill. I promised myself that if she got better, I'd tell the truth—make it all right between you and Pers."

As she spoke Clemency realized that Syrie Amberley was unchanged. She was not repentant, only keeping a bargain with Fate.

Forreston Man's Death Linked to Crash Injuries

Gordon A. Swift, Forreston, died at KSB hospital Friday morning from injuries sustained in an automobile crash on route 26 south of Polo, February 8.

He had suffered injuries which resulted in his being hospitalized on several occasions, according to the testimony given at the inquest at the Preston funeral home Friday afternoon.

Dr. Arthur E. Maloney, state pathologist, Princeton, testified that in his opinion death resulted from a fractured pelvis and acute atrophy of the liver. Dr. C. L. Drennan, Polo, who attended the injured man at the crash and at the hospital, verified the findings of the state pathologist.

Dr. Drennan said Swift was removed with some difficulty from his car, brought to the hospital, returning to his home about a month later.

State Highway Patrolman Stephen Adee, Milledgeville, testified that Feb. 8, he was ordered to investigate a wreck. He said a truck belonging to Raymond Kalas was found parked on the paving with a flat tire. Flares were burning about 50 feet ahead and in the rear of the truck, he said, but the driver was not present, having gone for repairs. The paving was wet and the weather was foggy, he testified.

Boyle Tells of Judge Who Can Get Blood Out of a Courtroom

By HAL BOYLE

New York—(AP)—City Magistrate J. Roland Sala looked around his crowded courtroom.

It was packed with complainants and defendants in 75 or so petty cases involving minor debts in the dignity of the big city's law.

Then Magistrate Sala, who usually hears appeals for justice, himself made an appeal for help.

Boy Dying

"Just a few blocks from this courtroom a young high school boy, an honor student, is dying. He is suffering from hemophilia, or uncontrolled bleeding.

"This boy must have blood or he will die. Will anyone here who is willing to volunteer to act as a blood donor for him please get in touch with me after court is over?"

Later, as he sat in his chambers, the phone rang.

"Say, judge," said a voice. "I was one of the fellows you fined this morning. But I want to help that high school boy you mentioned. I've got a bunch of guys here willing to give him some blood."

Gets Police Cars

"Give me your address—and stay right where you are," said Sala. Then he called some police friends. A few minutes later five police cars rolled up to the address the man had given.

There were 22 men and boys waiting. They were driven to the Brooklyn Red Cross. And there, led off by Magistrate Sala himself, each gave a pint of blood.

"They saved the dying boy's life," said a Red Cross official.

The incident wasn't at all unusual for Sala, who is a very unusual magistrate. Seven times he has made such emergency appeals in his courtroom, and in six of the seven cases his action saved someone near death.

Perfect Record

On every occasion he has accompanied the volunteer group to the blood bank, and made a deposit, too.

The magistrate, a 43-year-old former actor, amateur boxer, Shakespearean authority and art collector, is one of the city's leading blood donors. Over the years he has given 63 pints himself—five times the amount of blood in a man's body.

Donors he has brought in have contributed at least 250 pints since the end of the war. Sala also raised 96 pints of blood to send to wounded Israelites fighting in Palestine.

"It was all volunteered by Christians, too," he grinned.

No Basement? Try Playroom in Garage

If you have no basement your garage can double as a recreation room. Finish the walls with building board or plaster. Use the same material attached to the collar beams extending across the garage to provide a flat ceiling and to hide the rough construction of the underside of the roof. Build shallow wall cabinets along one wall for storage of car equipment, outdoor tools and games. Extend these cabinets from floor to ceiling.

High on the opposite wall, provide additional cabinets or shelves so that furniture can be placed under them to save floor space. Sliding doors save space, make the cupboard interiors easy to reach even when the car is in the garage.

Conceal the electric lights behind frosted glass set flush into the ceiling, or run fluorescent tubes around the ceiling line behind a cove.

Fire-Safety

If the garage is attached to the house, the wall between should be made as fire-resistant as possible. In fact, the entire structure should be given fire-resistant treatment because with human occupancy the fire hazard may be increased.

DeWitt MacKenzie Says Even Wars Produce Their Comedies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Even wars produce their comedies, as witness one I encountered towards the close of the first world conflict while AP correspondent with the British forces in France and Belgium.

During most of the war the corps of reporters at general headquarters comprised seven men—five British and two Americans. As the end approached, however, a considerable number of other American correspondents were permitted to go to the front, and the British established a special headquarters for the Yanks. I was moved over to the new establishment with my companions.

For some inexplicable reason the American headquarters could not get automobiles for the scribbles. As I recall it we had one car, and the newsmen took to thumbing rides on military lorries or any sort of conveyance headed for the front.

The British officer in charge of the press finally came to me and said he had done everything he could to get cars without avail. He wanted the Associated Press to appeal to the British commander in chief, Field Marshal Haig, for transportation. So finally it was agreed that I undertake this delicate job.

It seemed clear that a routine appeal for cars wouldn't get me anywhere with an overworked C-in-C. My only hope lay in getting an idea which would have special interest for Haig himself. So I sat down to figure the thing out.

Then I wrote a letter, pointing out to the C-in-C the straits to which the American correspondents had been reduced. I laid special emphasis on the fact that, with the second battle of Mons boiling

HOW TO BUY BUILD FINANCE MODERNIZE FURNISH IMPROVE YOUR HOME

'More Space,' Living, Dining Room Trend

At any given period in history there are at least three architectural styles—one gaining favor, one in great use, and one declining in popularity. And this is perfectly true today, when the trend is toward more versatile living space.

A natural outgrowth of this versatility feature is combined living-dining space. The rigid requirement that living and dining rooms must be separated, and furnished and decorated differently, is being relaxed. Naturally this more informal arrangement demands more functional furniture.

Accordingly, versatile furniture is being developed. More and more manufacturers are producing tables with before-and-after possibilities—before (and after) dinner, the bridge, console or sofa table is a decorative piece of living room furniture; but at meal time the table extends to form an adequate dining table.

Chairs, too, have dual uses as dining and as occasional pieces. Often they are low slung, as are tables and sofas, so as not to obstruct the view of the popular picture window.

The practice of conserving space and making furniture versatile has given rise to some problems, especially in heating. A furniture arrangement which seeks to utilize every bit of space fails if it must allow for old-fashioned heating units such as the heavy, cast-iron radiators which were the "latest thing" a generation ago. These radiators throw off a blast of heat which can damage furniture and draperies if they are too near. Of course cabinets can be placed around these radiators, but then heat is lost while fuel costs rise. And enclosing cabinets just increases the amount of space the radiator takes up.

This is probably one reason for the growing popularity of convectors—radiators, which can be recessed into the wall or placed against it. In either case they extend into the room only a few inches. In most modern homes, convectors are located under the window, where they serve the dual purpose of taking up very little functional space while blanketing the window against excessive loss of heat to the outside.

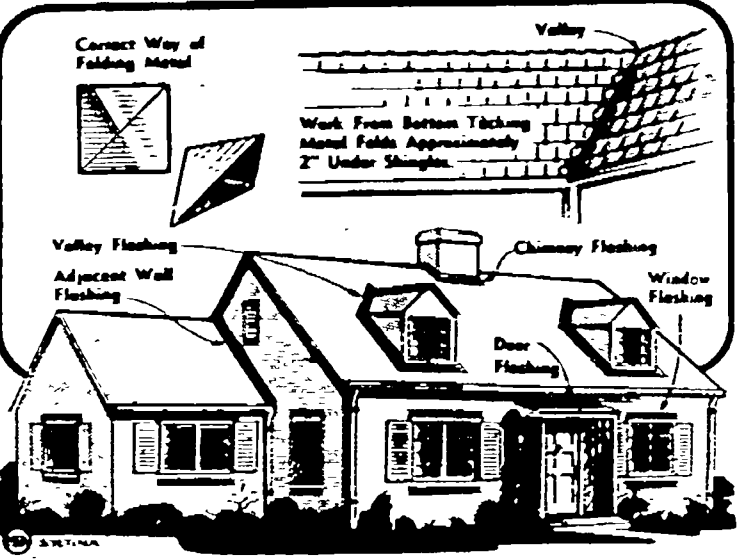

Used with steam or hot water heating systems, convectors are also ideally suited to the modern architectural trend. They decrease fuel costs and increase living-dining space.

Versatile furniture definitely is in vogue today. Every piece should be bought with an eye to the various functions it can or must perform. In remodeling or furnishing a new house, consider how the furniture will be arranged, and don't overlook the heating units—they can limit your space or add to it, and they are especially important in a modern combined living-dining room, where every inch counts.

Mexico claims certain islands off California because the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo of 1848, ceding territory to the U. S., failed to mention them.

Fertilizer applied to the farm fish pond will increase the growth of plants on which fish feed, hence will increase the fish yield.

Good Flashing Helps Weatherproof

Every house, regardless of its type of construction, has certain vulnerable points which must be properly protected to keep water or moisture from seeping through. Generally, these trouble points lie where two surfaces join together.

Flashing has proved to be the best means of sealing these gaps. Flashing of non-rusting sheet metal, such as copper, is most economical and easiest to apply. In temporary construction a heavy tarpaper, is often substituted for metal.

Where two roofing surfaces meet at an angle, the resulting joint is first covered with flashing before the roofing is applied. This makes a watertight joint that prevents water from getting under the roofing.

When valley flashings are rusted out, repair of a permanent nature can be made by using squares of copper bent on a line between two corners to the valley angle. The bent square can then be inserted under the shingles, starting at the bottom and working to the top.

Squares must be large enough to permit the upper edge to fit up under the second shingle about 2 inches. If nails are encountered, cut them off with a shingle hook or an old chisel. Be sure to replace the nail when the flashing is completed.

Around dormers or between any wall and room surface, the flashing should extend up under the siding and out over the shingles. Strips 8 or 9 inches long should be applied in a series of overlapping sheets, starting at the bottom. If the siding is already in place, it can be bent and shoved up under the shingles.

Cleaning Np. Painting Up. Cuts Mishaps

Cleanliness and paint are two great allies in maintaining health. Ordinarily we think of paint, varnish and lacquer in terms of preservation or decoration, but these finishes are also of tremendous importance in sanitation, health and proving better light.

Drab, soiled walls, floors and woodwork encourage the growth of bacteria. Cracks and fissures in walls and ceilings collect organic matter on which bacteria feed. Clean, freshly painted surroundings—whether they be our homes, our schools, our hospitals or our business establishments—make us feel and work better and are more sanitary.

Extensive studies based on exhaustive research have proven that "functional" painting (using colors chosen by virtue of their functional qualities) plays an important part in reducing accidents, promoting better morale, aiding health and improving productive operations. This particularly applies to factories, stores, offices, hospitals and schools.

In factories, "functional" painting means using distinctive light reflecting colors on working areas of machinery where the materials worked on are dark. Traffic lanes, danger areas, locations of first aid and fire apparatus are painted with distinctive colors. Frequent painting of factory interiors in proper colors not only improves appearance and contributes to a high level of sanitation, but definitely reduces eyestrain, headaches and accidents.

Freshly painted working areas are a definite invitation to clean up dirt, trash, and waste materials which may be overlooked if the surroundings are dingy and dull.

In stores and offices, frequent functional painting in colors chosen for their light reflectance and appeal improve employee morale and good will. Frequent painting also reduces eyestrain of employees and improves sanitation.

Hospitals use large quantities of paint. They recognize the fact that a cheerful atmosphere and clean surroundings, in which ample daylight and color both play a leading part, have much to do with the mental attitude of ailing patients who have to spend most of their time looking at walls and ceilings.

To promote faster recovery, elaborate color schemes have been devised for the rooms of patients with different types of ailments. Many hospitals repaint operating rooms and nurseries every three months and private rooms once a year.

New Materials Transform Old House

A wide selection of materials changed an old farmhouse, left, into a new-looking house. White-painted boards and natural knotty pine were used for the sidewalls, and green asphalt shingles for the roof.

Selection of distinctive materials can be the secret of transforming an old house into a home with a brand-new look.

In remodeling a farmhouse near Chagrin Falls, Ohio, William C. Weidman chose two kinds of siding. The lower part of the walls was covered with 8-inch-wide boards, running horizontally and painted white. Knotty pine was applied vertically on the upper part. Green fire-resistant asphalt roof shingles were selected.

Because the lower part of the house is lighter in color than the upper part, attention is attracted to the lower part. Consequently, the house appears lower than it actually is.

If the owner of a house wants to make it seem taller, he can choose light-colored shingles and light paint for the upper part. Asphalt shingles are available in a wide variety of solid and blended colors, and many desirable color effects can be created.

On the interior, Weidman replastered all the walls and laid new hardwood floors. He added a living room fireplace and built a tile-walled bathroom. The kitchen was equipped with modern fixtures. The old partial basement was expanded to full size.

A picture window was cut at the front of the home. New door and window frames and sash were installed. A new chimney was built. The house was insulated completely.

Beauty Big Factor In Oak Preference

The widespread preference for oak floors in homes is ascribed in large part to their inimitable natural beauty of grain and coloring. No amount of ordinary wear will efface this beauty since it is a part of the structural make-up of the wood. Should the surface be marred by years of neglect or abuse, the original attractiveness can be restored by sanding and refinishing.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Economic State

Business pushed ahead during the first quarter of 1950, according to the latest report made to congress by the president's council of economic advisers. The board's monthly summary shows that most of the gauges it uses for measuring activity registered a strong upturn.

Production of goods and services reached a rate of $258,-000,000,000 a year during the first quarter—a level of $3,000,000,000 higher than the rate for the latter part of the last year. The rate of consumer spending rose to a new peak. Unemployment fell, during March, by 551,000. The stock market was active, with prices high.

Though farm income dropped and expenditures for plant expansion are expected to fall below last year's figure, these statistics are held to bear out the council's expectation that 1950 will be a period of good business. But it is admitted they do not reflect an economic expansion capable of providing jobs for the nation's constantly growing working force. Increasing unemployment can mean grave economic, social and political trouble.

But when the time arrives to talk of solutions, it will be good sense to insist that all proposed cures be examined with care. Some that have been suggested would be worse than the disease.

Right now it would be wise to worry more about another danger. Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, former chairman of the board, has been trying to warn the nation that its present prosperity is not too well founded. He has pointed to the return to deficit financing, to the government's outlays to keep farm prices high, to labor's demands for more concessions. These are real threats to the stability of the economy.

The administration can do something about all of them, if it sees fit. By so doing it might put the nation on a strong foundation—a foundation strong enough to support a structure capable of absorbing every American who wants to work.

Energy from the sun's rays, rather than atomic power, eventually may provide all the world's energy requirements. Solar energy holds promise of supplementing our dwindling supply of coal, oil, and natural gas, and ultimately may meet all the needs of power.

The airplane is proving itself as an economical and efficient farm and forestry tool. In spraying operations, a single plane treated, in a half hour, an area seven or eight times as great as would have been covered by a ground crew in a normal spray season of about six weeks.

THE MAN JESUS SAW
See yourself not in what you are, but in what you are and can be in God. There were three persons in Matthew the publican: (1) the publican whom his associates saw; (2) the Matthew whom Matthew saw; (3) the Matthew whom Jesus saw. Each thought he saw the true Matthew. Who was right? The Matthew whom Jesus saw was the true Matthew and so he turned out to be—the Matthew of infinite possibilities. There are three people in you: the one your associates see—the outer you; the one you see—the present you; the one whom Jesus sees—the future you.

Everything depends on which "you" you center upon. If you are centering on the "you" your associates see, you will be in bondage to what others think about you; you will look around before you act to see what effect your action will have on others; you won't act; you you react. You will become an echo and not a voice—a thing and not a person. If you center upon the "you" you know, then you will be discouraged. For who has not had some skeleton in his closet—things in his life that make his cheeks burn with shame and humiliation? If you are centered on this "you," you will be caught in the bondage of inhibitions, by what you have been and are. But there is this third "you" that Jesus sees—what a "you" that is! It is a "you" surrendered to God, co-operating with Him, taking His resources, working out life together—a "you" loosed from what you've been and done, ransomed with divine energy and insight, a "you" that does things beyond your capacity, amazing both yourself and others—a "you" poised, progressive, and productive. That is the real "you." Center on Christ's "you" and you will become it.

Jesus always looks not on what a man has been or is, but on what he is going to be. And that is right. The artist looks not on what a stone has been or is, but on what he is going to bring out of it—the living figure. A group of radiant Christians have as their motto, "My adventure is God." Good; and under your breath you can add, "My adventure is God, and the self I'm going to be in God."

God—I'm adventuring in Thee! I'm pushing back my small horizons as I see Thee. I'm sloughing off my littleness as I see Thy greatness. I'm leaving my outgrown self by life's unending sea. I'm exchanging my "you" for Thy "you." My bonds are burning—and I come. Amen.

Hollywood—(NEA)—Exclusively Yours: Now that the senators have dropped their Hollywood morals probe, the movie brass hats will unleash a big public relations campaign to prove it was a wise decision.

Hollywood needs a shot of good public relations as badly as Ingrid Bergman needs a marriage license.

A "World's Fair Museum" has moved into a store front on Hollywood Blvd. A sign outside screams: "Human Oddities on Parade."

Human oddities are something NEW in Hollywood.

The grapevine is thrashing about with the report that Gloria Swanson has signed a deal with Fox and that Zaneck will have one of the hottest box-office names of the day as the result of her dramatic pyrotechnics in "Sunset Boulevard."

Stan Kramer's refusal to borrow Arlene Dahl from MGM for Roxanne in "Cyrano De Bergerac"—because MGM wanted it in the contract that the film would never be shown on television—is a good example of the cold war being waged between Hollywood and TV. Kramer isn't pro-TV but as he says:

"What happens if TV moves into the theaters?"

Jose Ferrer plays Cyrano in the same beard he wore as the South American dictator in "Crisis." It's the first time I ever heard of a beard being held over.

BOGIES' FIFTH

H. Bogart and Baby celebrate their fifth wedding anniversary May 21. . . . Rex Bell makes his debut on local TV and there's even talk of wifey Clara Bow getting in camera range. . . . Frank Sinatra wants out of his MGM contract. I hear it won't be difficult. Russell Birdwell, who put Jane Russell out in front, has reopened his Beverly Hills office to beat the publicity drums for William E. Bittner, one time Warner actor, who is running for California state controller.

Frank DeVol again: "Isn't it odd that a starlet who is afraid of a mouse will go out with a wolf?" . . . Sudden thought: Wouldn't popcorn be more appropriate than rice for movie weddings? . . . Gloria Grahame and Director Nick Ray, separated but not divorced, are trying to patch up their marriage. . . . Hollywood is buzzing about the big tiff between Shelley Winters and her hairdresser, Shelley's snapping hit the hairdo expert the wrong way and she packed up her carling irons. The studio upheld her and now she's working on the tresses of rival movie dolls.

An actor complained to Bob Cummings about a dog stealing most of his scenes in a recent film. Bob snapped back: "In my last picture Joan Caulfield wore a white bathing suit. The only guy who knows I'm in the picture is the payroll clerk."

Irony that Ella Raines, one of the screen's prettiest dolls, is starring in Edward Leven's "The Second Face." It's a story about the problems faced by a homely girl in a world where beauty is a woman's primary asset. A trick makeup makes Ella ugly in the early part of the picture.

John Carroll and Lucille Ryman, who called it a day in the divorce courts, are dating again. . . . Don Ameche has joined the Hollywood Gush Club—an oil well just came in. . . . Susan Peters returns to town next month for a rest and a visit with her adopted son. Don't be surprised if she moves to New York permanently after that. . . . Shirley Temple's spitting image, Daria Massey, whose career as a moppet was stymied by the resemblance, has blossomed out as a teen-age beauty for "Tea for Two."

WHERE'S POWELL?
June Allyson gets Van Johnson for the boy friend in "Three Guys Named Mike." . . . Joan Blondell is at the El Rancho Vegas in Las Vegas for her six weeks of waiting for a divorce from Mike Todd. . . . Steve Cochran asked for the second lead to Gary Cooper in "Dallas" even though the role was small. Now the part has been built up to almost co-starring dimensions.

Next film for Oscar Levant is "An American in Paris," for which he'll play the music of the late George Gershwin. "I'm not writing music these days," sighs Levant. "Every time I write music I get into trouble."

MGM has banned all its stars for CBS radio shows in an argument over picture credits. . . . I'd Climb the Highest Mountain," with Susan Hayward and Bill Lundigan, will be filmed on location in the mountains of North-east Georgia, near Gainesville.

Admirals Say Flattops Would Launch Atom War Offensive

NEA Washington Correspondent
Norfolk Naval Base, Va.—(NEA)—The Navy may have snuffed its open criticism of the Air Force B-36 super-bomber. But the admirals are sticking tight to their belief that the aircraft carrier task force is still the most effective weapon to use against a potential enemy.

Time and time again, this idea was drummed into a group of 80 businessmen, educators and newspaper men invited to attend Navy Secretary Francis P. Matthews' Civilian Orientation Course at Norfolk Naval Base. The week-long course included a score of lectures by the Navy's top brass, reflecting their current thinking on national defense and naval policy. This was followed by two days demonstrations at sea aboard aircraft carriers and submarines.

"We are still on the edge of a shooting war," said Undersecretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball, keynoting the course.

"Naval strategy has remained unchanged from the days of the rowed galley," declared Prof. E. B. Potter of the Annapolis faculty. "World War II produced a new instrument of naval warfare in the carrier," he continued. "New instruments demand a change in tactics, but the changes should not be made too fast."

As an example, Prof. Potter cited that the Civil War was fought with wooden ships, in spite of the fact that the ironclad Monitor and Merrimack had been called the "ultimate instruments of war."

Admiral Analyzes Strategy
Then Vice Admiral Felix B. Stump, commander of the U. S. Atlantic Fleet Air Force gave the carrier the business. "The international situation is now so acute we may have trouble any day," he said. He analyzed the U. S. problem as first to keep war away from American shores, second to keep communism off western Europe.

England can't exist without food imports, said the admiral. That means there must be full control of the seas. And with seven-ninths of the earth's surface water, the Navy is still a factor.

Admiral Stump advances these arguments in developing the Navy's theory that the carrier is the best weapon.

The carrier task "group as used at the end of World War II consisted of three to five carriers, maneuvering in a five-mile area. If the carriers are kept at least a mile and a half apart, the group is safe against atomic attack, since only one could be knocked out by an A-bomb dropped in this area.

Even this would require penetration of the carrier defense forces. Surrounding the carriers are rings of cruisers and destroyers. A 37-ship task force is capable of delivering over 800,000 rounds, or 155 tons of anti-aircraft fire a minute, at ranges varying from 3000 to 42,000 feet.

The carrier task force has its radar screen, extending its warning defense well beyond cruiser and destroyer fire. Also, each carrier has the striking power of its 100 fighter planes with a range of 700 miles.

Of the 110 U. S. aircraft carriers of all types in the last war, 15 were sunk—none of them in the big Essex class. All of them lost were hit by dive bombers and "kamikaze"—the original guided missile.

Carrier "Mobile Airfield"
Main attribute of the carrier is that it is a mobile airfield, capable of moving 2000 miles within 48 hours. In any defense of Europe, Admiral Stump believes carrier forces would be able to move into the Mediterranean and the Arctic.

While operation in close quarters involves obvious risks, one of the frequently overlooked carrier advantages is that as a target, it sucks in enemy planes and destroys them. In the last war, the Navy claims that the record of enemy planes shot down by carrier aircraft was 18 to one U. S. plane lost. The ratio for land-based planes was seven enemy planes shot down for one allied plane lost.

For operations in Asian waters, Admiral Stump believes that carrier task forces would be able to move into the Arabian Sea, the Persian Gulf, Bay of Bengal, China Sea and Bering Sea. In the late war, carrier task forces remained at sea for six months at a time, being supplied by sea.

In demonstrations at sea off the Virginia Capes, members of the Civilian Orientation Course saw helicopters, blimps, drone planes, bombers and jet fighters catapulted, taken off and landed on the carrier Philippine Sea. Then by moonlight they saw night attack planes take off and land on the carrier deck.

Biggest development looked forward to by the carrier forces is delivery of the new Douglas transport planes to the Navy. They are now in production. Use of these new planes will require strengthening of the carrier decks, but they will greatly increase carrier range.

Slow Trump Play In Tough Hands

By OSWALD JACOBY

"I made the percentage play the other day," writes a Memphis bridge player, "but it didn't work very well. Please tell me if there was anything wrong with my calculations."

"West opened the queen of clubs, and bang went two tricks in that suit. I trumped the third club and drew three rounds of trumps. Then I led a diamond from my hand."

"I reasoned that if West had the ace of diamonds, I would be able to win two diamond tricks in dummy. On one of those I would eventually discard a low heart, after which everything would be in apple-pie order."

"Much to my disappointment, however, East had the ace of diamonds. What's more, the hearts didn't break, so I had to give up a trick in that suit too."

"What went wrong, and how should I have played the hand?"

My Memphis correspondent is evidently an experienced bridge player, and his reasoning was excellent in the main. He simply overlooked the fact that he could have his apple pie and eat it too: There are a great many simple hands in which the best play is to draw trumps as soon as possible. When the hand looks hard, it pays to give the trumps a second look. You'd be surprised how often it pays to make some other play before drawing trumps.

In this case, suppose South begins his campaign by leading diamonds. He finds out at once that the ace is badly located for him. Therefore he must make some other plan to avoid the loss of a heart trick. That's just where he gains by having trumps still in the dummy.

After declarer regains the lead, he can draw two—but only two—rounds of trumps. Then he cashes the three top hearts. If the hearts break 3-3, there is no risk in taking the top hearts; the opponents will follow suit each time. If the hearts break 4-2, the best chance to avoid the loss of a trick in the suit is to hope that the player with four hearts also has the last trump.

This was actually the case West would not be able to trump the third top heart because two rounds of trumps would leave him trumpless. South would get by safely with the top hearts and could then ruff his last heart with dummy's remaining trump.

New Books at The Dixon Library

Library Hours: 10:00 - 9:00
daily except Sundays and holidays
Look Out for Liza, by Faith Baldwin. Apparently a clinging vine, actually a manager, her friends were soon warning "Look out for Liza!"

The Doctor Has a Family, by Evelyn Barkons. The author of "I Love My Doctor." "The Doctor Has a Baby," continues the story of her doctor and their family.

The Salt-Free Diet Cook Book, by Conason & Metz. Special diet for those required to forgo salt, attempting to make the meals more palatable.

The Parish of the Holy Family, Cahokia, Illinois, 1699-1949, by Joseph P. Donnelly. Cahokia celebrated its 250th anniversary last year and this pamphlet gives the history of the parish for that period.

War or Peace, by John Foster Dulles. A view of the nations' future by an outstanding leader long interested in foreign relations. His view is optimistic.

The Cocktail Party, by T. Eliot. The play which is running on Broadway is unusual, a comedy unlike the author's usual pessimism.

Hunt the Tortoise, by E. X. Ferrars. Another Doubleday mystery.

Moneywise: The Intelligent Woman's Guide to Everyday Finance, by Mary B. Finke. A very sensible book about money, the spending and investing of it.

Badmen on Halfaday Creek, by James E. Hendryx. A new western by a popular writer of them.

Barracon, by Harry Hervey. A sensitive young woman married to a slave trader in Portuguese Guinea in the 1850's views the business with horror and begins to feel she is confined in a "barracon" like the slaves. Suspense intensifies to an exciting climax.

The Robert E. Lee Reader, by Stanley Horn. The life of a great American, a soldier, a gentleman, an educator; told chiefly through excerpts from his own writings. This book was purchased with Friends of the Library money.

The Poetry of the Negro, 1786-1949, ed. by Langston Hughes and Arna Bontemps. A useful and complete anthology of Negro verse, necessarily very uneven in quality; purchased with Friends of the Library money.

Stories for Youth, ed. by Lass and Horowitz. A collection of stories of some literary quality still appealing to young people.

Magazines for School Libraries, by Laura Katherine Martin. The title of this book is misleading. The evaluations of the magazines—all types are useful for libraries—it is true, but they are useful also for parents and others who are considering subscribing to magazines.

Hear My Heart Speak, by Charlotte Paul. A romantic story of a shell-shocked soldier whose speech was restored in a dramatic way which also straightened out his romance and that of his mother.

Room for One More, by Anna Perrotti Rose. The Roses took three additional children — so-called "case histories"—into their home with their own three. They succeeded in transforming them into normal, healthy children. Mrs. Rose tells about it with detail and anecdote, humor and pathos.

Jealousy in Children, by Edmund Allan Ziman. A book for parents of more than one child when jealousy seems likely to become a problem within the family and for those who see it developing toward others outside the family.

What's RIGHT?

SITUATION: You arrive late at a large party.

WRONG WAY: Make a noisy entrance, calling out to friends across the room, so that everyone will know that you have arrived.

RIGHT WAY: Come in quietly and move from group to group, if you don't want to be lost in the crowd.

You are going to a dance.

WRONG WAY: Hand your compact and lipstick to your escort to carry in his pocket.

RIGHT WAY: Take a small evening bag along to put them in and look after it yourself.

SITUATION: While a convention guest in a distant city you are entertained in a private home.

WRONG WAY: Accept the hospitality without making any gesture of appreciation other than thanking your hostess when you leave the party.

RIGHT WAY: When you return home write your hostess a short note, thanking her again for her hospitality.

Grand Old

Q—When are present rent controls due to expire?
A—If Congress does nothing to extend them, they will die June 30, 1950.

Q—How many fighter aircraft are there in Alaska at present?
A—Just 88.

Q—What are the all-time American League club standings?
A—If the won and lost records of the league's eight clubs from 1901 through 1949 were totaled, the standing as of now would be, in order: New York, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington and St. Louis.

Q—What is the date of the first United States one-cent piece?
A—Rarest of all cents is that of 1799. One in uncirculated condition is known, and this was discovered in a London pawn shop years ago. Until then, no 1799 cent in mint condition was believed in existence.

Home May Be Perfect For All But Children

In trying to give their children a "nice home" many well-meaning parents offer their young ones a "nice home" from an adult's point of view without taking the children's needs seriously.

The Browns are a perfect example. They have put a lot of money and a lot of planning into a beautiful new home.

But their three school-age children don't seem very happy in it. Everything is just too perfect for the comfort of children.

Mama is ever-watchful for fear they'll track up the beautiful and expensive carpeting or leave finger marks on the walls or lounge too carelessly in one of the chairs bought to be decorative, but entirely impractical. She keeps after them constantly with the reminder that they now have a beautiful new home they must take care of.

PLAYMATES EYED WITH SUSPICION

Other children naturally aren't welcomed inside the house. When they do come in, they are carefully watched by Mama.

Even the yard is full of don'ts. There is room for a baseball diamond, but that would be hard on the beautiful lawn.

The children would like a puppy, but small dogs are hard on flower beds, and besides dogs are a lot of trouble and Mama has her hands full keeping her new home in shining order.

The Browns think with pride that they have finally achieved a fine home for their children. But the youngsters might disagree with them. It's a fine home for adults all right. But children have different needs from grown-ups. They need the kind of home that isn't too nice for the neighborhood gang or for the messy projects children are forever dreaming up.

They need yards that can be used as playgrounds. They need to live with as few don'ts as possible. Yet many ambitious parents give their children "nice homes" that are nice for everybody but the children themselves.

SOCIETY NEWS

With the Girl Scouts in Dixon

INTERMEDIATE TROOP NO. 3

This troop consists of 22 girls of 6th grade age. They meet at the Grace Evangelical United Brethren church each Monday after school.

At Christmas time they made styrofoam animals for the church tree and recently they presented the church with a pencil sharpener to show their appreciation.

They have finished their hostess badge and will be through with one photographers badge soon. They are working on the troop and foot travellers badge now.

They made pin boxes for their mothers for Christmas and hope to do some finger painting before the end of the year. They decided to have the buttercup as their troop crest and each girl now has one of these.

Mrs. George Baker spoke to them about her home country of Wales. She is going home this summer and is taking a long letter they wrote to a troop over there. Also the girls filled an overseas school bag.

They presented the play "Girl Scout Week" twice during the year; once for the Juliette Lowe tea and again for the Father and Daughter banquet. They have sold enough cookies to pay for their registration next year.

Mrs. C. D. Padgett is the leader with Mrs. Jack Little acting as assistant until Jan. 1.

The troop is divided into three patrols—Secret Box with Martha Lindquist, leader and Peggy Marshall, assistant; Secret Seven, with Kay Lund, leader and Carol Schreiner, assistant; Good Samaritan with Jean Walker, leader and Georgiana Stiles, assistant. Linda Grautwein is troop treasurer. Other members of the troop are: Betty Branigan, Beverly Bowers, Nina Burgard, Sharon Duke, Judy Freeman, Myrtle Fritz, Dianne Kanupp, Barbara McKean, Donna Ragsdale, Nancy Rorer, Nancy Schroeder, Linda Stackhouse, Dorothy Utz, Barbara Weiser and Marjorie Wickler.

BROWNIE TROOP NO. 28

These are the second, third and fourth grade from St. Mary's. They meet in the school hall every Monday afternoon and have for their leaders, Mrs. LaVere Keeney, Mrs. Paul Lampman and Mrs. Donald Nolan. Troop committee members are Mrs. Herbert Cooper and Mrs. E. W. Carlson.

They have had parties on special occasions and are planning a cook out in the near future. At Christmas they made a scrap book and sent gifts to a little boy in a hospital in Rockford. They also made luncheon sets and are now spool knitting. They sold 224 boxes of cookies.

Officers are changed every three months in order that girls from each grade may have a chance conducting meetings.

INTERMEDIATE TROOP NO. 29

By Mary Kay Knick and Diane Hoffman

Troop 29 is made up of girls from the fifth grade at South Central and St. Mary's schools. Their meetings are held every Thursday afternoon after school in the auditorium of the South Central school. Mrs. Charles Farrington and Mrs. Wilbur Stitzel are leaders.

They have been working for their second class badge which is now nearly completed. For agriculture they planted seeds and some girls made their own containers from cheese boxes which they painted themselves.

For community service they made 20 tray favors out of pine cones, chocolate papers and pipe cleaners for Thanksgiving at K.S.B. hospital. They donated to the infantile paralysis drive and helped a family in time of trouble.

TO BE WED IN EARLY SUMMER—Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Coffey of Polo, announce the engagement of their daughter, Louise, to Frank Irving Wright, son of Mrs. Florence Wright, 300 West Bridge street, Austin, Minn. The wedding will take place in the early summer.

by sending a box of groceries to them.

In health and safety they had Mrs. Newell Plasters talk to them on "Cleanliness and Health in Relation to Beauty" with a discussion period afterwards. From what they learned from this the girls made up a health chart which they will keep for about four weeks. This chart is kept in a scrapbook which they designed and made themselves with the other pages used for pictures cut out from magazines pertaining to the subject.

For homemaking each girl brought six cookies she had made to be served at a tea for the mothers. The centerpiece consisted of a doll dressed in a replica of the Girl Scout uniform brought by Mary Ann Fries, artificial yellow daisies and yellow candles. Barbara Gibson and Karen Maronde poured.

In dramatics they were divided into groups of five. Each group put on a play taken from a story or nursery rhyme of their own choosing.

In music and dancing they found out as much as they could about Johann Strauss. Their leaders taught them how to waltz and they danced to the tunes of the famous Strauss waltzes. They are planning to learn a few simple tap dancing steps and if they do well they might put on a variety show for their parents.

For arts and crafts they made Christmas cards and Santa Claus cotton pickers for their mothers at Christmas time. They also made nut cups for the Father and Daughter banquet.

For nature they played games to learn to recognize birds and wild flowers.

In order to give more girls the experience they have changed officers every three months.

The present officers and members are: Mary Jane Wolfe, president; Barbara Gibson, secretary; Judy Vorhis, treasurer; Joyce Farrington, color bearer; Mary Houden and Mary Ann Fries, color guards; Anne Loan, Shirley Bodmer, Mary Kay Knick, Karen Maronde, Margaret Kernan, Judy Gipson, Janet Gordon, Susan Etnyre, Jane Slothower, Martha Preston, Diane Hoffman, Norma Barnes, Judy Hansen, Margo Johnson, Beverly Zoph, Sharon Williams, Judy Schawff and Juliana Hepler.

Wesleyan Group Hears of Trips

Members and guests of the Wesleyan society enjoyed a scrumptious supper at the church. Violets and yellow tulips decorated the tables. The president, Mrs. Casper Blumling, called the meeting to order, and L. R. Chingman led the group in singing with Mrs. LeRoy Buhler at the piano.

Mrs. A. N. Boyd had charge of the devotional period using as her subject "Past and Present of Life." The secretary and treasurer's reports were read and approved. The chairman of the Finance committee gave a report on the rummage sale last Saturday and also on the sale of cards. The Society was asked to take care of the graves of seven pioneers and those of the ministers. A motion was made to take care of flowers this year and a committee for this purpose was appointed as follows: Mrs. H. J. Schumacher, Mrs. John Wadsworth and Louis Feik. The following were appointed to the nominating committee: Mrs. Louis Meppin, LeRoy Buhler and Mrs. Louis Feik.

Mrs. Louis Feik, as program chairman, introduced Mrs. A. N. Boyd who spoke of conditions and Niagara Falls 25 years ago. Louis Feik also spoke of some of the places they had visited.

C. C. Hintz gave an account of their recent trip to California using slides as he talked. They also visited Mrs. E. C. Lumsden's home, Rev. Lumsden being pastor of the Dixon Methodist church at one time.

Rev. Nesmith closed the meeting with a prayer after which the meeting was adjourned.

The committee for the evening was: Mr. and Mrs. Louis Feik, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hintz, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Preston and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Grobe.

Follies Fables

The merrie merrie month of May is gaining in momentum here in Dixon, not only lush bloom outdoors, but capers are developing with the 1950 Follies. There's an added momentum through scores of situations; the telephone, offices and homes and baby-sitting Belvedere's are having a heavy session. Many offices have at least a few limping chorines. As time goes on constant humming of the catchy tunes will be unconsciously rendered everywhere.

Director, Tom Stokes, who is really a terrific guy with one of the world's friendliest smiles has us all on the first name routine. Wonder how he does it from Florida to Pittsburgh and throughout the U. S. A.

There has been a wonderful turnout for the cast. Unbelievable enthusiasm to do the show which certainly shows everyone had a really marvelous time doing the Follies of '48, for many of those same people are back. We're all hoping George Nichols will return to the Follies Spotlight. All are waiting too, for John Cahill's appearance at rehearsals. We see the Mayor Fritz Hofmann dropping in at rehearsal, and you hardly ever miss John Roe or Don Raymond, they really love it. By the way tickets are on sale and can be secured through members of the Service Club. All of this is for our own Dixon Public hospital.

Those driving cars are requested to meet at the Chamber of Commerce not later than 6 o'clock, as dinner will be served promptly at 6:30.

Camera Fans Notice This

Amateur photographers who wish to take pictures of the Maytime Flower and Fashion show at the Loveland Community House next week are invited to come between 11 and 2 o'clock on Thursday, May 18. They are welcome at all times during the show but by allowing this special time for them the committee felt that pictures could be taken without the hindrance of a crowd. The only sections which will not be available to them at the "pre-view" hours will be the small sections where the judges happen to be working at the moment.

This has been a popular feature in the past and a number of Flower Show picture fests have been held after each show.

Flower Show News

Tickets for the Maytime Flower and Fashion show are under the direction of Mrs. L. C. Glessner and Miss Léva Missman. Members of the Garden Department of the Dixon Woman's Club and members of the Men's Garden club have advance tickets for sale.

geared to pay 75 cents on the dollar. But they can be fixed to pay out nothing or ten, 20, 40 or 60 per cent of the cash poured in to them.

William B. Herlands, who looked into the matter for city officials in New York in 1941, figured the pay-outs at around 40 to 50 per cent of the gross receipts.

200,000 in U. S.

It has been estimated that there are 200,000 slot machines in the U. S. There is no way to arrive at the precise total. The internal revenue bureau collects a tax of $100 a machine. It keeps statistics in a manner that does not show the number of machines but does show that 69,786 places paid taxes last year.

Nevada allows all forms of gambling. Idaho permits coin-operated devices for gaming on a local option basis. Washington and Montana allow them in private clubs. Criminal codes forbid gambling in Louisiana, Tennessee and Alabama but they have statutes that set license fees for gambling devices.

There are no available records to show who owns all the machines around the land. Nor are there any records on how many millions they yield to their owners.

The California commission on organized crime said last year the gross "take" by people who control slot machines "probably" is around two billion dollars a year.

Convict Hears Sessions of Parole Board

Bormann said, had an effective range of 80 miles.

Bormann said Hellyer had been making the recordings for months. He said the wire spools were smuggled out hidden in elaborate hand-tooled leather bags which Hellyer made in prison and mailed to persons outside the walls.

"The hidden mike," Bormann said, "was so sensitive that it picked up the crackle of paper on the table, the shuffling of feet, the whispered conversations between parole board members, even the breathing of the parole officials."

At Anamosa, Deputy Warden Ray Pucell declined comment but said Warden Foss Davis knew about the recording incidents and the transmitter. Davis himself was reported attending a warden's convention in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Gov. William S. Beardsley said in Des Moines it was all news to him. He said he would ask for an investigation.

Air Force Officer Lost from Bomber

Fort Worth, Tex., May 13—(AP)—An Air Force lieutenant in Des Moines it was all news to him. He said he would ask for an investigation.

Maj. Edwin D. Easley, plane commander, reported that no crew member saw a parachute open after the explosion.

The accident apparently was caused by failure of the pressure system of the giant bomber. The bombardier's window was ripped open by the blast which happened over Salome, Ariz.

The plane, on a training mission to Fairfield-Suisun Air Base, Calif., returned here late last night after circling the area of the accident in search of the missing flier.

Name of the missing flier was being withheld.

Stevenson Appoints Public Guardians

Springfield, Ill., May 13—(AP)—Governor Stevenson yesterday appointed public guardians in 17 Illinois counties.

The appointments are to run until December, 1953. They are subject to senate confirmation at the next session of the legislature.

Public guardians are given the powers of a natural guardian over minors who are orphans or are without close relatives to administer their affairs.

Among those appointed were Edgar McGarr, DeKalb, and William H. Landman, Cedarville.

U. S. Develops Baby A-Bomb For Fighters

Washington, May 13—(AP)—The United States has baby A-bombs small enough to be carried by jet fighter-bombers yet possibly as powerful as their king-sized brothers.

Detailed information on the bombs is a carefully guarded secret. In fact, there has been no official announcement as yet that they exist.

The first definite indication that such weapons are in production was gleaned by a reporter seeking the information on discussions among military leaders over the possibility of arming this country's North Atlantic allies with atomic weapons.

To Replace Ground Forces

The discussions were said to be based on the possibility of using "lightweight" bombs as tactical weapons to replace expensive ground forces in Europe.

While the size of the "baby" A-bombs is secret, the fact that they can be carried by jet fighter-bombers gives some hint of their weight. The Republic F-84 Thunderjet, a typical jet fighter-bomber now in use by the air force, can carry two 1,000-pound bombs, one under each wing.

In what may have been the first veiled reference to the new bombs, Secretary of Defense Johnson said in a report to congress a few weeks ago:

"Atomic weapons are no longer a small number of bombs of a single size and type to be used only strategically on a carefully selected target. A variety of weapons is under development which may in the near future have military significance both tactically and strategically."

Need Large Numbers

Tactical use of the A-bomb to support ground and sea surface action is an often-mentioned goal of military planners. Experts agree that such use hinges on making available large quantities of small bombs to swift, highly maneuverable planes.

Scientists agree that the A-bomb can be reduced in size without reducing the power. Recent developments in bomb casings, along with increased knowledge of atomic materials, make it highly probable that the new bomb is more powerful than early models dropped on Japan or tested at Bikini.

Bomb size is based both on the amount of fissionable material necessary to produce an explosion and on the type of non-explosive shell required to contain the material for safe handling and delivery.

Ex-Representative Committed to Elgin

Chicago, May 13—(AP)—A former Democratic state representative charged by his wife with assault, has been committed to the Elgin State hospital. He is Joseph L. Rategan, 63, who was dropped from the Democratic ticket in 1948 after serving 10 years in the general assembly.

Judge Harley C. Helm of Tuscola, sitting in Cook county court, ordered Rategan committed Monday after another court continued the assault charge against the legislator pending a psychiatric examination.

8,000 New Yorkers Climb from Tunnel When Train Stalls

New York, May 13—(AP)—Eight thousand subway passengers climbed and catwalked to the surface when a Manhattan-to-Queens train broke down in the East river tunnel during last night's homecoming rush hour.

A short circuit on one coach of a packed ten-car train caused the delay.

MRS. ROSETTA BENNINGS

Mrs. Rosetta Bennings died at 6:20 a.m. Saturday morning at Dixon Public hospital. She had been a resident of Dixon since 1943 when she came here to live with her niece, Mrs. William Badie.

Mrs. Bennings was born in Columbia county, Georgia, March 31, 1876. She was the daughter of Ephraim Yarbrough and Silvia Wright.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Ulyssis Bennings, and 13 brothers and sisters. She is survived by Eugene Golden, a son, and two nieces, Mrs. Maud Badie of Dixon and Mrs. Irene Tillman of New Orleans, La., a nephew, Lloyd C. Fields, is stationed in Japan, and five others reside in this country.

Funeral services will be held at the Preston funeral home Monday. Burial will be in Oakwood cemetery.

MRS. MARTHA MAY GIGOUS

The remains of Mrs. Martha May Gigous will be taken from the Preston funeral home to her late residence at 4 p.m. today. Mrs. Gigous died Thursday evening at 6:12.

Mrs. Gigous is survived by one son, Harry, of Warsaw, Indiana, and three daughters, Goldie at home, Mrs. Frank J. Vincent of Rochelle, and Mrs. Roy Mackley of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, and two sisters and eleven grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her parents, her husband and one son, Ralph.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 4 p.m. at the Dixon Christian church. Rev. H. E. Trimble will officiate. Burial will be in Evergreen cemetery, Pine Creek.

Add Jet Fighter to Hong Kong Squadron

Hong Kong, May 13—(AP)—A Royal Air Force Vampire jet fighter plane was added today to the 50th squadron stationed at the British crown colony. Pilot D. K. Freeman of London said it took a little over two hours to fly the approximately 950 air miles from Cholon, Indochina.

Walkout Cuts Deeper Into U. S. Economy

Angelo to Salt Lake City run at 6 p. m. (Pacific Daylight Time) today.

The reported union offer had been disclosed yesterday by a high railroad official who asked anonymity. The proposal, he said, could be the "break" that might end the walkout of the 18,000 firemen on parts of the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, and all of the Santa Fe, and the Southern railway.

After last night's meeting with the mediation board he refused to confirm or deny that a union offer had been made. A union spokesman said he did not know of any offer made by the brotherhood.

O'Neill said the board members would remain in Chicago, ready to meet with the carriers and union representatives at any time in attempt to settle the dispute. The chief issue is the union's demand for a second fireman on multiple unit diesel locomotives.

SATURDAY, MAY 13th
DANCING 9 UNTIL 12
ELKS & GUESTS LUNCH

Now is a good time to purchase a residential lot in the most desirable section of Dixon, the Assembly Park, a very restricted neighborhood. There will never be any stores or any business houses whatsoever in the park.

These are the only available, desirable river front lots, commanding a fine view of Rock River.

This area will contain the beautiful and modern homes of Dixon. A neighborhood means more to a family than anything else.

Owners of lots are well known professional and business men who expect to build beautiful homes as soon as building conditions permit. May we show you these fine lots. There are many beautiful, large shade trees which add greatly to the value of the property.

The bonds won, 282 to 10.

Yale Backs Marshall Plan in Address to Engineers' Society

America has done one of the grandest things that has ever been done in the country of Greece and without it, Communism was bound to have crept in and taken over, declared Farm Adviser C. E. Yale, Amboy, in addressing the annual ladies' night dinner of the Rock River chapter of the Illinois Society of Engineers Friday evening at the Dixon Elks club.

The Greek farmers are eager for information, but their problems are many, with the limitations placed on research and extension in which the federal inspectors exercise supreme authority.

The country has limited natural resources with their men and then went underground. It was then that the guerrillas came into being and the farmers not only lost all of their livestock but their machinery and children as well. Funds from the United States are being well spent, the speaker gave as his opinion as he discussed the Marshall plan. Greek farmers, he stated, were past masters at evasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Yale spent six months with the Greek people, when he served as an aid in setting up a program which would prove both beneficial and helpful to the Greek farmer.

They arrived in Salonika July 20 and immediately realized that they were in for a rugged experience.

Bill Anthony was program chairman of the evening and the Bards, Elks male quartette, favored with several selection during the evening.

Wanted: a U. N. Bill Collector!

Lake Success, May 13—(AP)—Wanted by United Nations: Good bill collector, preferably one who speaks Chinese and Spanish.

That ad hasn't appeared in print yet and probably won't, because things are not done that way in the diplomatic world. U. N. officials, however, acknowledge they are worried about the unpaid 1949 assessments of several countries, especially the large sums owed by China and Argentina.

This year is the first time the U. N. has had any serious problem arising out of overdue assessments. There usually are two or three small countries who lag a little behind, but the balance due for 1949 is $2,735,000.

U. N. officials are not surprised they are not getting the $1,475,000 due from Chiang Kai-Shek's hard-pressed Chinese government, but they don't know what to make of Argentina's delay. President Juan D. Peron hasn't paid anything at all on his assessment of $750,000 for 1949.

These two countries account for most of the overdue funds, but 11 other countries still owe various amounts.

It Took Awhile, but I'm an Umpire Now!

Chicago, May 13—(AP)—John Lucinski of Saddle is a baseball umpire who has sought revenge for five long years.

Now he feels he's in a position to give the Bronx cheer to an old enemy—and he's asked Chicago police to help find him.

Lucinski explained he is looking for "a young fellow named Dante Galento who works as a bartender in a Chicago beer tavern."

"You see," Lucinski's letter said, "he was the guy who ordered me out as an umpire at softball games in England, France and Belgium during the last war. He played second base for the team right along. He was the captain. He just jumped up and down and said I was rotten at umpiring."

"And here today I am getting paid by the YMCA for my wonderful services. Out west here they claim I'm one of the outstanding umpires in the nation. I want him to know about it, so please try to find him."

Amvet Auxiliary Reports on Lung

At the monthly meeting of the Amvet auxiliary Post 123 at the Amvet hall a report was given on the first Iron Lung fund money making event, "Paradettes on Review." As all bills weren't in at this time a final report will be given at a later date as to the "starter" amount of the fund. A letter was read concerning a new type of iron lung which will be demonstrated to the auxiliary if they are interested.

President Margaret Imfield, was selected as the auxiliary's delegate to the state convention at East St. Louis, Ill., June 2, 3 and 4. Plans were discussed for a concession at the Fidler's Show which the Amvets are sponsoring May 15 to 20 at the Dixon Airport Field. A Hard-Time party planned for May 27 has been postponed.

The auxiliary will participate in the Armed Forces Day parade which will be held May 18 at 6:30 p. m. A practice drill will be held at the Dixon Armory, May 16, at 6:30 p. m. All members are requested to be present.
